BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

INTRODUCTORY.

WE PRESENT to our patrons the fourth volume which we have published, of the Bloomington and Normal City Directory, and with considerable pride point to the fact that all the work of canvassing, compiling, printing, and binding, was done by home people, under the direction of the publishers. Not one cent was spent for foreign labor.

The map of the city and county has been corrected to date; pages showing railroad fare and distances from Bloomington on all the railroads running through the city will be found on the colored pages in front. Day and night telegraph rates and time for opening and closing the mails will be found on colored pages in back of book. The fire alarm signals appear in the miscellaneous pages in front.

The number of names in the City Directory is 13,180. Deducting 1,524 names belonging to Normal, leaves Bloomington 11,659, which multiplied by two (the smallest multiple used) makes the population 23,318, an advance over the census of 1890, notwithstanding the fact that we have omitted the floating population in this issue, such as students and other temporary sojourners.

Many fine residences have been added in the past two years which is a great source of pride, and the business parts of the city have correspondingly increased.

Thanking the public for their patronage, we are,

Very truly,

PANTAGRAPH PRINTING AND STATIONERY CO.,

Sept. 1, 1897.

DAY AND NIGHT TELEGRAPH RATES

From Bloomington, Illinois, to all Parts of the United States and Canada.

Below are the telegraph rates established by the Western Union Telegraph Co., and the Postal Telegraph Cable Co., to each state in the Union and Provinces of Canada, for messages of ten words or less, exclusive of date, address, and signature; also the rate for additional words. Rates to any point in the states mentioned will not be above prices quoted below, but telegrams to many points in the different states can be sent for a smaller sum.

Explanation of the table: When ten-word day rate is twenty-five cents, the rate for each additional word is two cents. When ten-word day rate is forty cents, each additional word is three cents.
